Harry Potter and the Philosopher's Stone ✨

The Beginning

Harry Potter is an orphan who lives with his uncle, aunt, and cousin, the Dursley family. They treat him poorly and never tell him the truth about his past.

On Harry's eleventh birthday, he begins receiving mysterious letters addressed to him. The Dursleys try to stop him from reading them, but eventually a giant man named Rubeus Hagrid arrives and reveals that Harry is a wizard.

Going to Hogwarts

Hagrid takes Harry to Diagon Alley to buy his school supplies. Harry also learns that his parents were murdered by the dark wizard Lord Voldemort. When Voldemort tried to kill Harry as a baby, the curse backfired, leaving Harry alive with a lightning-shaped scar on his forehead.

Harry then begins attending Hogwarts School of Witchcraft and Wizardry. There, he becomes friends with Ron Weasley and Hermione Granger. The three quickly become close friends.

he Mystery of the Philosopher's Stone
At Hogwarts, Harry learns about a magical object called the Philosopher's Stone, which can grant eternal life and produce gold. The Stone is hidden and protected to keep it out of the wrong hands.

Harry, Ron, and Hermione begin to suspect that a professor named Severus Snape is trying to steal it. They investigate the clues and secrets surrounding the Stone.

Facing Danger

The three friends overcome a series of dangerous obstacles to reach the Stone's hiding place. They face magical plants, a giant wizard's chess game, puzzles, and several other challenges.

At the end of their journey, Harry is shocked to discover that the real culprit is not Snape, but Professor Quirinus Quirrell. Quirrell has been secretly helping Voldemort, who has survived in a very weak form.

The Final Battle

Voldemort tries to use Harry to obtain the Philosopher's Stone. However, Harry successfully protects it. Harry's touch burns Quirrell because of the magical protection left by his mother's sacrificial love.

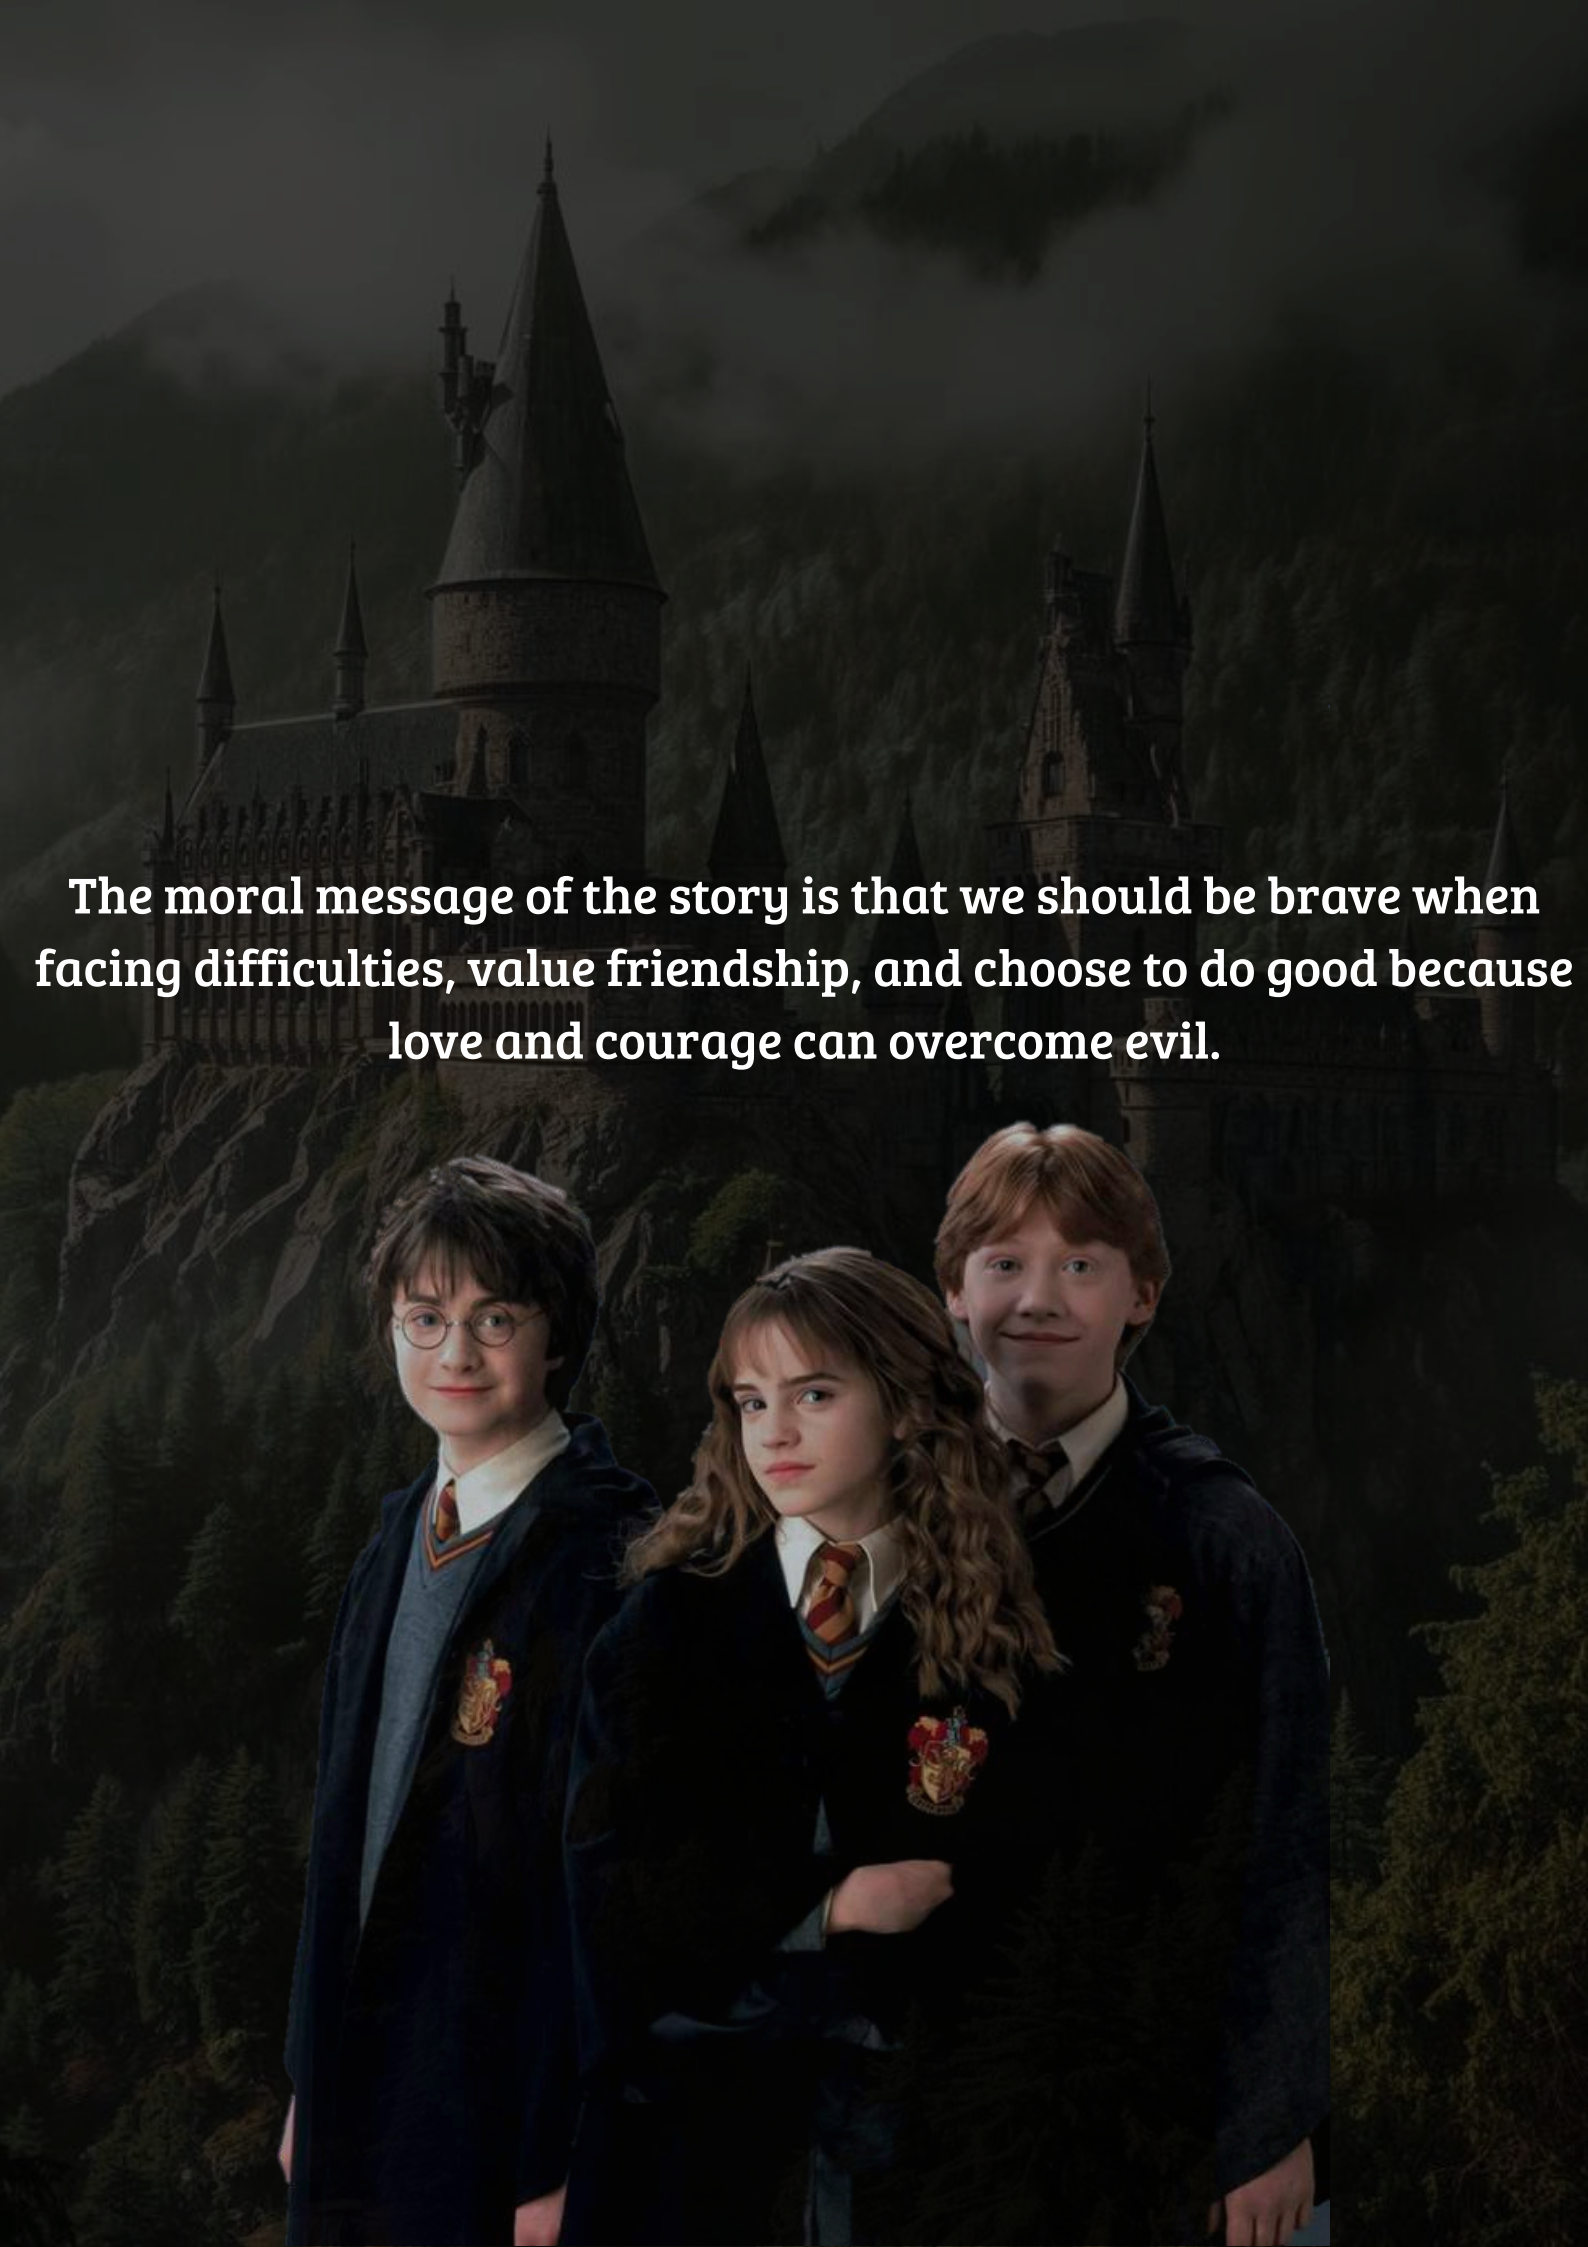

Quirrell dies, while Voldemort escapes in spirit form.

The Ending

Harry wakes up in the Hogwarts hospital wing and learns that the Philosopher's Stone has been destroyed to prevent it from being misused. At the end of the school year, Gryffindor wins the House Cup thanks to the bravery of Harry, Ron, Hermione, and their friend Neville Longbottom.

Harry returns to the Dursleys' home for the summer holidays, but he now knows that he has a place he can truly call home: Hogwarts

A promotional image for the Harry Potter series. In the foreground, Harry Potter, Hermione Granger, and Ron Weasley stand together, wearing their Hogwarts school uniforms. Harry is on the left with his signature round glasses, Hermione is in the center with her long curly hair, and Ron is on the right. They are all looking towards the camera. In the background, the majestic Hogwarts Castle is perched on a dark, rocky cliff. The castle features several prominent towers with conical roofs. The surrounding landscape is dark and misty, with some evergreen trees visible at the base of the cliff. The overall atmosphere is mysterious and dramatic.

The moral message of the story is that we should be brave when facing difficulties, value friendship, and choose to do good because love and courage can overcome evil.

The Beginning shrek

Once upon a time, in a quiet and peaceful swamp, there lived an ogre named Shrek. Unlike many people in fairy tales, Shrek did not want to be a hero or become famous. He was happy living alone in his swamp. He enjoyed his privacy and did not want anyone to disturb him. Although people were afraid of him because of his frightening appearance, Shrek was actually a simple and honest ogre who just wanted to live peacefully.

One day, Shrek's peaceful life suddenly changed. A large number of fairy-tale creatures were forced to leave their homes by Lord Farquaad, the ruler of the kingdom. These creatures included Pinocchio, the Three Little Pigs, the Three Blind Mice, and many other magical characters. They had nowhere else to go, so they eventually came to Shrek's swamp and began living there.

Shrek was extremely annoyed. His quiet swamp became crowded and noisy. He wanted the fairy-tale creatures to leave because he believed that they had destroyed his peaceful life. Therefore, Shrek decided to go to Lord Farquaad's castle and ask him to take the creatures away.

While traveling to the kingdom, Shrek met a talkative donkey named Donkey. Donkey was friendly, energetic, and very talkative. Shrek wanted to travel alone, but Donkey continued following him. Even though Shrek was annoyed by Donkey at first, the two eventually became good friends.

The Rescue Mission

When Shrek and Donkey arrived at Lord Farquaad's castle, they discovered that Farquaad was trying to become a true king. To achieve this goal, he needed to marry a princess. He decided to choose Princess Fiona, a beautiful princess who was trapped in a castle surrounded by danger.

Princess Fiona was being kept in a tower guarded by a powerful dragon. Farquaad did not want to rescue Fiona himself because the mission was dangerous. Instead, he made a deal with Shrek.

Farquaad promised Shrek that if he rescued Princess Fiona and brought her back to the kingdom, he would remove all the fairy-tale creatures from Shrek's swamp. Shrek agreed because his main goal was to get his peaceful home back.

Meeting Princess Fiona

After rescuing Fiona, Shrek, Fiona, and Donkey began their journey back to Lord Farquaad's kingdom. At first, Fiona and Shrek did not understand each other very well. Fiona thought Shrek was rude and unfriendly, while Shrek believed that Fiona only cared about appearances.

However, as they traveled together, they gradually learned more about each other. Fiona discovered that Shrek was not the frightening monster that people believed him to be. Behind his large and scary appearance, Shrek was actually kind, brave, honest, and willing to help others.

Shrek also began to develop feelings for Fiona. He admired her personality and courage. However, Shrek was insecure about his appearance. He believed that because he was an ogre, Fiona could never truly love him.

During their journey, Fiona also began to have feelings for Shrek. She realized that Shrek was different from the people she had imagined. He did not judge her based on her appearance, and he treated her honestly.

Their relationship became closer, but Fiona had a secret that she had not told Shrek.

Fiona's Secret

Every night, Princess Fiona transformed into an ogre because of a magical curse. During the daytime, she appearance as a human princess, but when the sun went down, she changed into an ogre.

Fiona believed that the curse could only be broken by true love's kiss. She thought that if she found true love and received a kiss from the person she loved, she would remain human forever.

Fiona was ashamed of her secret appearance. She was afraid that if Shrek discovered that she was also an ogre, he would reject her. One night, Donkey discovered Fiona's secret and learned about her transformation.

Fiona explained that she did not want Shrek to know because she was afraid of being judged. Donkey tried to understand her situation and encouraged her to be honest about her feelings.

Unfortunately, Shrek later overheard part of Fiona's conversation with Donkey. He did not hear the entire conversation, so he misunderstood Fiona's words. Shrek thought that Fiona was describing him as an ugly monster who could never be loved.

Shrek became hurt and disappointed. He believed that Fiona did not accept him because of his appearance. Instead of asking Fiona what she really meant, Shrek decided to hide his feelings.

Shrek became hurt and disappointed. He believed that Fiona did not accept him because of his appearance. Instead of asking Fiona what she really meant, Shrek decided to hide his feelings.

The misunderstanding caused a major problem between Shrek and Fiona. Shrek thought that Fiona did not love him, even though Fiona actually had feelings for him.

Because of his sadness, Shrek decided to keep his distance from Fiona. He completed his promise to bring her back to Lord Farquaad's kingdom. Fiona was also hurt because she thought Shrek no longer cared about her.

When they arrived at the kingdom, Fiona prepared to marry Lord Farquaad. She believed that marriage was the only way to escape her difficult situation and return to a normal life.

Meanwhile, Donkey realized that Shrek had misunderstood Fiona's conversation. Donkey explained what had actually happened and told Shrek that Fiona was not talking about him. She had been talking about herself and her own ogre form.

Shrek finally understood his mistake. He realized that Fiona actually cared about him and that he had allowed his insecurity to affect their relationship.

Shrek immediately decided to stop the wedding and tell Fiona how he really felt.

The Ending

Shrek rushed to the wedding before Fiona and Lord Farquaad could be married. He arrived at the ceremony and confessed that he loved Fiona. At that moment, the sun began to set. Fiona transformed into an ogre in front of everyone. Lord Farquaad was shocked by her appearance. He could not accept Fiona because he cared more about appearances and becoming king than about Fiona's true personality.

Farquaad ordered his guards to arrest Shrek. However, before anything could happen, the dragon that had guarded Fiona's castle suddenly arrived at the wedding.

The dragon attacked Farquaad and stopped him from harming Shrek and Fiona. With Farquaad defeated, Shrek and Fiona were finally free to choose their own future.

Shrek and Fiona then shared a kiss. The magical curse was finally broken. However, instead of turning Fiona permanently into a human, the magic caused her to remain an ogre.

At first, Fiona was surprised because she had expected the curse to make her human forever. However, Shrek told her that she was beautiful exactly as she was. He accepted Fiona's true appearance and showed her that real love was not about having a perfect appearance.

Fiona finally accepted herself as an ogre. She realized that she did not need to change her appearance to be worthy of love.

In the end, Shrek and Fiona were married in Shrek's swamp. They celebrated their new life together with Donkey, the dragon, and their fairy-tale friends. The swamp, which had once been Shrek's lonely home, became a place filled with friendship, happiness, and love.

Moral message

Do not judge someone based only on their appearance. Accept yourself for who you truly are. True love is based on personality and the heart, not beauty or appearance. Do not jump to conclusions without knowing the situation Friendship and courage can help us overcome difficult situations.
